ONLINE SELF-DIRECTED TRAINING

Is It Right For You?

If you look around its pretty easy to see that the mood of the times is do more and more with less and less. This is generally true in families, communities, Churches, charities, etc... However it is clearly true in local governments. The phrases "tax increase" or "new revenue" have become almost inciting. At the same time, citizens are demanding faster service and more information from their governments while costs continue to rise. With fewer funds and therefore, less employees, or overtime for existing ones, this makes things like off-site seminars and continuing education a thing of the past for many. It even makes it hard to pull one employee out of the mix for a whole day for on-site training.

In looking at the training requirements for our NextGen software, it occurred to us that we needed a new approach in training and installation. The answer became clear pretty quickly. Our customers need to have more control over their schedule, be free to access training anywhere and anytime they choose, and have it be less expensive. Fortunately advances in Internet speeds, online training tools, and a more computer savvy customer base made online training viable for the vast majority of our customers, for the first time.

Therefore, we are excited and proud to bring you LGC's Freeline University. The freedom to train online when you can and where you want! Your personal class curriculum is listed in the order you need to take them, online tests after each session tells you how you are doing, and automatic online scoring tells you where you need to review. If this sounds like a fit for your office, contact our marketing department for more info and to sign up for a sample session to see if it's right for you!

How does it work?

Each course is designed to walk you through important features in the software. For most topics, there are two sessions: a guided (with voice over) demonstration, followed by a 'test'. Tests allow you to make appropriate entries into a simulated software representation and validate your response. At the end of each test, you receive a pass/fail response. Training is self-paced and not timed. This allows each trainee to learn at their own pace. Coursework may also be saved as you go so no worries about losing your place or your work. The goal is to make this training mechanism as convenient and informative as possible.

CERTIFICATION

At the end of each successfully completed course, users will receive an official certificate that may be printed. The system will also maintain a copy of the certifications for reference when the office has completed the entirety of the training.

CONSISTENCY

Each user that is signed up for the training will receive the same course work (unless specified by office manager). Courses are taken in a specific order and can be repeated by the user as many times as necessary for learning purposes.

CONVENIENCE

Training is available 24/7. All you need is internet access and you can train. This means that training can be done at the office, or at home. Progress reports for each user can also be sent to a specified email on a nightly basis to avoid the hassle of inquiring individual users of their progress.

Availability?

Currently, this training is only available to those who purchase the NextGen software packages.

All training videos and materials will still be accessible after the software training and installation have been completed.
